

Corey Goss is a Toronto based entrepreneur and the founder of Bold Egg Naturals, the company behind BPM, a high performance deodorant formulated with natural ingredients and packaged in recyclable metal tubes.

With a background in technology, real estate development, and private investment, Corey approaches entrepreneurship with a builder's mindset. He actively incorporates artificial intelligence into product development, branding, and business operations to build lean and adaptive companies. His entrepreneurial journey reflects a belief that resilience, experimentation, and continuous learning are essential to building meaningful companies.

Through Bold Egg Naturals, Corey joined the Canadian Council for Indigenous Business and is committed to contributing to Indigenous entrepreneurship and economic participation in Canada. He lives in Toronto with his family and is currently preparing for the public launch of BPM.